Skloff Financial Group Question of the Month

By Aaron Skloff, AIF, CFA, MBA

Q: We read ‘Pre-tax Versus Roth Contributions to Retirement Accounts – Which Is Better?’ Part 1 and Part 2 and ‘Does Your State Tax Pre-Tax Contributions to Retirement Accounts?’ Part 1 and Part 2 and ‘Does Your State Tax Withdrawals from Pre-Tax Retirement Accounts?’ Part 1. Are withdrawals from pre-tax retirement accounts taxed the same in all states?

The Problem – Assuming Federal Income Tax Rules and State Income Tax Rules Are the Same Can Be a Costly Mistake

Federal income tax rules can vary greatly from state income tax rules. Without proper planning, you may pay unnecessary income taxes.

The Solution – Proper Planning Can Avoid Unnecessary State Income Taxes Today and in the Future

Pre-tax contributions to retirement accounts allow you to defer federal income taxes. With proper planning you can generate legal tax arbitrage of federal and state income taxes.

States with No State Income Tax. Alaska, Florida, Nevada, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, and Wyoming. See the green colored states on the table below.

States with No State Income Tax on Retirement Account Withdrawals. Illinois, Iowa, Mississippi and Pennsylvania. See the blue colored states on the table below.

States that Tax Retirement Account Withdrawals. Arizona, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Idaho, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Vermont and Virginia. See the red colored states on the table below.

States that Provide a Tax Deduction or Exclusion or Exemption on Retirement Account Withdrawals. Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Utah, West Virginia and Wisconsin.
